Most of us came into recovery not realizing how stuck we really were: to an empty search for sex/romance, to a person or type of person, to unreal beliefs about ourselves, about 'love,' about God, or about how to live a fulfilling life. This workshop will have three panel discussions on three important milestones in recovery: recognition of our addiction, the withdrawal process, and finally freedom. After each panel there will be time for attendee questions or comments. The workshop is meant for both newcomers and for people with time in SLAA.
